Comfort can be enjoyed only by those whose momey affairs cause no worry. To be "comfortably rich" is an ideal condition, enjoyed by few, and yet within the reach of all. A steady income from money invested in safe securities is a source of comfort and pleasure. When that income is sufficient to live on, the possessor is as rich as any one can possibly be. There is no need then to work or worry, and there is time for the higher aims and pleasures of life. Happily, too, such investments are in the long run more profitable than speculations. Margaret Connelly is a little lady who always wins her audience. She sang her song and danced very cleverly. But the boys of the newly organized choir made the hit of the evening. Thomas Feeney, the soloist, has a beautiful voice and also acts with the best chorus heard in any church in the dity.

"Rose, My Rose," by Maida Hegney was a daintily pretty number. She was assisted by twenty of the little ones. A wee girl who won all hearts was little Oriella Brooks, who gave a pretty song and dance. She won so much applause for her first verse that she tried to sing it over, thereby causing a slight misunderstanding with her accompanist. She explained that she supposed she was to repeat the first verse because "everybody clapped."

The Japanese tea was well done with Miss Florence Halloran cleverly leading.

"Dolly Gray" was well sung by little Mille Williams in "soldier" costume.
